Although Idle, Local Hello Bills Move Up by Skeeters' Defeat.

RAHWAY IS VICTORIOUS

Although the Newark Elks were idle last night, they returned to their former position, first place, in the "Hello Bill" circuit as a result of the Jersey City quintet losing three games in a row to the Rahway combination on the Rahway Elks' alleys last night. Jersey City was the town which took first place from the locals recently, but it is expected that they will be Rahway turned in respective team counts of 896, 789 and 538 as against 731, 767 and 539 for the Skeeterites. Worth of Rahway, turned in the only double-century count of the match, 204, in the third game.

THE REWARD

by J. P. N.

Charley Weinert, of West Orange, didn't add much to his reputation as a fighter by his showing against Roy Kony, of Boston, in their ten-round

In the old days and in the new days I have seen boxers of every type, but never in all my born days have I encountered such a freak as Roy Kenny. He is the limit, and his performance against Weinert is indescribable. He can neither box nor fight, and he acted as if he was in a trance most of the time. The poses he assumed at various times created laughter and amusement, and his antics throughout made the contest a joke. He has a long reach and he can take a pretty good beating. He can also wallop some with his right hand, which he swings from the floor. Otherwise Kenny has nothing to recommend him, and he will probably not be in much demand around New York in the future.

Welling even, at mes, to take a desperate chance, against running into a wild swing from a terrifically awkward opponent. Of course, there was a way to fight Kenny and to beat him, for he tops the battling order in the "Worst Ever League," but Welnert, who is on the outside, has sufficient experience to solve such a peculiar fellow. For a few rounds Welnert worked a

From the fourth round on, Kenny staggered and clinched and fell around the ring, with Wehnert, all excited making frantic efforts to forget his bout with Kenny if he makes good against Ashe. The crowd was very small last night, due, no doubt, to the cold weather.

Weinert has one bad fault and he will have to cure himself of it if he hopes to become somebody in pugilism. He seems to become disgusted very easily at the failure of his opponents to stand up and fight him in the way he would like to have them do. He showed his displeasure when he fought Sailor White the second time, when he fought Tommy Madden and last night in his bout with Kenny he was wild because his opponent wouldn't stand up and battle. That is all a mistake. In such instances as those mentioned it is up to Weinert to study out a way to reach his man. He could have whipped Kenny to a certainty if he had used his jabbing tactics, instead of voting all his spare time and energy in planning for his future in the prize-ring. He is talking freely about his proposed match with the clever Packer McFarland, at 145 pounds at 4 o'clock on the day of the contest, and he is discussing with equal enthusiasm a prospective bout with George Chip, who seems to be looked upon as the best man among the middleweights. All this Gibbons' excitement creates an unusual flurry of excitement in pugilistic affairs and the fans are sitting back in their chair and patiently waiting for any old match which Gibbons elects to make. Mike is again the hero—and more hero even than when he first broke out in New York and fairly startled the natives.

OF MERIT

The beating McAllister received will not do him any good, and it is sure to set him back for a time at least. He is only a youngster and his experience was even less than I imagined. He has had only six fights and he has been out of the amateur ranks only a short time. He is a handsome, shabby and took his medicine like a man, but he was noticeably shocked by some strange fear and wasn't himself by any means. He knew what to do, but he didn't put any vim in his work. For instance, his snappy left hand lead to the face wouldn't any more than break an egg, and he never once snuffed the lead to the body, a blow which would have been deadly against Levinsky. He lacked the usual semblance of aggressiveness, and he might just as well have had his right hand tied up in a sling, for all the use he had for it. No, McAllister didn't fight his fight and Gibbons fought the best fight of his career.

It is said of Gibbons that he can beat any man in the world he believes he can beat, but that if there is a doubt in his mind as to his supremacy his performance suffers just so much. It is declared that while he had never seen McAllister fight he had all the confidence in the world that he could whip him. It is claimed that Mike was never anxious to fight McAllister and that he worried himself sick thinking about the match. There was surely something wrong with Mike on that occasion, for he came into the ring weighing 148 pounds, when he might have weighed as much as 158 pounds, at which weight the match was made. And all during the fight Gibbons acted as if he was scared out of his wits, yet when he essayed to fight he easily outthought McGeorty. It was on his work in the McGeorty bout that his chances against McAllister were judged, and all the great battles he had fought previously were completely lost sight of.

Newark will always have a tender spot in her heart for Sheppard, and Mel will tell you—and on the level, too—that nowhere he goes is he treated as well as he is here, and that he would rather race in Newark than in any other city in the world.

The Tabs games are always the big athletic treat of the season. The events are well chosen and the contests are usually close and exciting.

It is an annual occasion, too, for the gathering of the clans and the old-timers and the newcomers seem to have a jolly time and spend the most enjoyable evening. Lots of good hard work is always required to make an indoor athletic meet a success in Newark and the hard work has been unusually hard this season. Those who have toiled faithfully for the Tabs year in and year out, want no praise. The big crowds that invariably turn out to see the results of their efforts are pleasing

PORKY SOUNDLY DRUBBED

Levinson, as is usually the case, was greatly outweighed by his opponent. The ringside weights were 190 pounds for the Bostonian and 170 pounds for Levinson. Levinson was smaller than Flynn in every way. He was shorter, rounder, looked as if the New Yorker could in for another setback. Flynn towered above Levinson when they stood in the centre of the ring, and he had the advantage of a few inches in reach. But as the bout wore on it became evident that Levinson excelled Flynn enough in fighting spirit to make up for his physical deficiencies, and this decided the battle.

Johnson and Moran Sign Trade.
Articles were signed in Paris at 1 o'clock this morning by Jack Johnson and Frank Moran, of Pittsburgh, to fight for the championship of the world in the gay city the first week in next June. Johnson will get $35,000, which is guaranteed by William A. C. Knott, an American promoter of the American, represented by Charles McCarthy, formerly of Coney Island. Thirty thousand dollars is Johnson's fee for fighting, and the other $5,000 is for expenses, to be paid to him five weeks before the fight. An article of the contract reads: "If Johnson fails to enter the ring he thereby surrenders the world's championship to Moran."
